WHEREAS, each of us should have the freedom to make decisions about our bodies, our lives, and our futures with respect and dignity, including when and how to become parents, without barriers based on who we are, how much we earn or where we're from; and

WHEREAS, abortion care, along with the full range of health care, should be affordable, available, and supported for everyone who needs it; and

WHEREAS, on June 24, 2022 the Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade and 50 years of legal precedent; and

WHEREAS, on August 10, 2022, the City of Dallas approved a resolution to condemn any action intended to abrogate the fundamental liberties of the people of Dallas and affirm the City Council commitment to protecting people's right to make reproductive health decision for themselves and their families, including abortion care, and set policy regarding the use of city resources in the prosecution of people seeking to make reproductive decisions; and

WHEREAS, today, in the City of Dallas, people face delays when trying to access abortion care, are forced to travel hundreds of miles, and take on additional costs; and

WHEREAS, some people are denied care all together and forced to carry a pregnancy against their will; and

WHEREAS, systemic racism, economic insecurity, and a dehumanizing immigration system exacerbate the already massive barriers to abortion care; and

WHEREAS, the decades-old policies like the Hyde Amendment and insurance coverage bans, restrictions on medication abortion, restrictions based on documentation status, low wages and unfair working conditions, violence and stigma, and other restrictions, have especially impacted people of color working to make ends meet; and

WHEREAS, someone who wants to get an abortion but is denied is more likely to experience life-threatening maternal and infant health complications, more likely to have a household income below the poverty line and experience economic hardship, and more likely to stay in contact with violent partners, putting them and their children at greater risk than if they were able to receive the abortion¹; and

WHEREAS, abortion is one of the safest medical procedures in the country² and leading public health organizations such as the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists,³ the American Medical Association,⁴ and the American Academy of Family Physicians⁵ strongly oppose efforts to impede access to abortion care or interfere in the relationship between a person and health care provider; and

WHEREAS, a 2022 report found that more than 66 clinics in 15 states⁸ have been forced to stop providing abortion care as a result of criminalization, impacting 22 million women of reproductive age as well as transgender and nonbinary people who may be in need of abortion care; and

WHEREAS, almost one-third (29%) of the total U.S. population of women of reproductive age are currently living in states where abortion is either unavailable or severely restricted and a dozen other states are certain or likely to ban abortion in the future;⁹ and
