BACKGROUND

Creating A Respectful And Open Workplace For Natural Hair (CROWN) Act was created in 2019 by Dove and the CROWN Coalition to ensure protection against discrimination based on race-based hairstyles by extending statutory protection to hair texture and protective styles including, but not limited to braids, locks, twists, afros, and Bantu knots in the workplace and schools.

The CROWN Act has passed in 20 states, and localities in another 12 states have passed measures to ban race-based hair discrimination, according to the Society for Human Resource Management.
